Chief Election Officer of Student Vote

IPAC is a dynamic association of public servants, academics, and others dedicated to promoting excellence in public service. Join us for an evening of networking where you will get the chance to meet new and seasoned professionals from all levels of government in a relaxed atmosphere.

You will also have the opportunity to hear about the value of citizenship and the importance of youth involvement from our special guest speaker Taylor Gunn, Chief Election Officer of Student Vote.

Taylor Gunn, 28, is Chief Election Officer of Student Vote. Student Vote aims to improve levels of civic literacy among Canadians under the voting age by operating parallel election programs during official election periods in elementary and high schools across Canada. Student Vote has participated in the 2003 Ontario, 2004 federal, 2004 Alberta, 2005 BC and 2006 federal elections. The January 2006 federal election was Student Vote's greatest turnout to date with more than 468,000 students casting their 'practice' ballot.
