

The Oct 8 Friday power lunch panel discussion was a great success! For the first time ever, the RAT PACK: Etienne Laliberte, Nick Charney and Dave Eaves -- two federal public servants/bloggers and one open government advocate -- sat side by side in the same room to talk about their own experience and engaged the audience in a candid discussion on how to take risk and be a change maker in the public service. 45 public servants from various departments and agencies attended the event at the Canada School of Public Service in downtown Vancouver. They were joined by 60 others from across the country who attended via web cast.

This event is a joint partnership between IPAC, Governexx, National Manager's Community and the Canada School of Public Service.
