WHAT SENIOR LEADERS ARE SAYING ABOUT IPAC

MALA KHANNA

Deputy Secretary to the Cabinet (Governance), Privy Council Office, Government of Canada

"More than ever before, public administrators need a wide range of skills and experiences to tackle the toughest challenges in Canadian society. IPAC provides the perfect forum to set public servants up for success in this work, giving them the chance to meet one another, share their experiences, and develop important skills and competencies. But IPAC is more than just a community of practice: it's a vital organization that helps deliver better government for all Canadians."

CATHIE O'TOOLE

Chief Administrative Officer, Halifax Regional Municipality

"More and more, municipalities are working directly with Provincial and Federal governments on local issues. IPAC is one of the few places where all three can come together and build relationships away from the pressures of problem solving. I highly recommend investing in an IPAC Institutional Partnership for the opportunities it offers in support of public sector excellence and the value it provides. Each partnership allows many staff access to tremendous benefits, including professional development, networking, and access to regular high-quality events."

PAUL LAFLECHE

Nova Scotia Executive Deputy Minister, Provincial Infrastructure

"I am proud to say that several departments within the Province of Nova Scotia are currently Institutional Partners with IPAC. Each partnership allows hundreds of staff access to tremendous benefits, including professional development and networking. I highly recommend investing in an IPAC Institutional Partnership for the opportunities it offers in support of public sector excellence and the value it provides."

BONNIE LYSYK

Former Ontario Auditor General

"Being part of the IPAC community through an Institutional Partnership is a worthwhile investment because it gives organizations access to the brightest minds in public administration exploring emerging trends and innovations across the country. Whether it's access to high-profile speakers at a conference or a panel of industry leaders on a webinar, our team continues to benefit from IPAC's professional development programming and networking opportunities."
